Plenty Of Strings . . .

Supporters of federal aid to education say that Washington will dole out dollars without any strings attached. However, the facts show otherwise, as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States points out. Whenever the U. S. Office of Education has passed out money, it has exercised controls.

The Chamber cites a list of specific examples. Among them: The Office of Education dictated curriculum and administrative practices of a guiding and counseling institute in Tennessee. Under the same Office's regulations a language laboratory in an Illinois school must remain idle when not used for teaching modern languages; it cannot be used to teach Latin. A federal employee threatened to remove a school adding machine from a Minnesota school if it were used for any purpose but science — the government had helped buy the machine. In Alabama the government set minimum wages to be paid on a school building for whose construction federal funds were used.

So it goes. And no one should be surprised. Back in 1942 the Supreme Court held that "it is hardly lack of due process (of law) for the government to regulate that which it subsidizes." That pretty well tells the whole federal aid story.

Frail Weapon . . .

The belief has been widely held that Communism feeds upon poverty, hunger, human misery. This country's multi-billion dollar postwar foreign aid program was largely designed to raise the living standard of great masses of people and so help make them immune to the Communist virus.

But events cast grave doubts on the accuracy of the belief. Consider an article in National Review on the Italian political situation by E. V. Kuehnelt-Leddihn, a distinguished Austrian observer of the world scene, and a writer and lecturer of international standing. In Italy, he writes, the chance of a Communist take-over is greater than in any other European country — and if this should happen it might prove a fatal blow to the whole defense system of the West, as established in NATO. But Communist strength in Italy cannot be blamed on the "empty stomach" theory. Despite much still existing poverty, he tells us, "general living standards in Italy for all classes have never been higher than they are right now."

Then he makes this extremely significant observation: "The richest parts of Italy always have been the Reddest; the provinces immediately south of the Po — not the distressed areas . . . where poverty and misery have been the rule for centuries."

In the cold war against Communism, it would seem that the foreign aid program, for all its fine goals, has too often proven a frail and expensive weapon.

The Old Horton Farm in Fredrick has changed hands. The new owner is Oscar Kimbler, a Maple River farmer who will move to the new place in the spring. Two days were required for removing the floor and putting down the new one, and then business resumed as usual. The place is now a model of neatness and built for use as a grocery store. The shelving is arranged quite like those common in chain stores — 60 feet in all, and adds attractiveness and convenience.

Miss Barbara Lee Coaty, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Coaty of Frederic, was united in marriage with Mr. Edward Ralph Durga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Durga of Grayling, at 6 o'clock in the evening on Saturday, September 23rd, at The Church of Christ, in Frederic. The couple spoke their vows before the bride's father, who performed the ceremony before some eighty guests.

For her wedding, Miss Coaty wore a ballerina-length gown of lace over silk, designed by Mrs. Diana Phillips of Frederic. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a cap of lace and silk. The bride's flowers were miniature white roses.

Miss Sandra Bailey of Mt. Pleasant was bridesmaid. She wore a dress of silk with blue accessories and white carnations in a corsage. Douglas Durga served his brother as best man, having just arrived from Germany after receiving his army discharge.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Coaty was dressed in a yellow knit with black accessories. Mrs. Durga chose a blue jersey with white accessories.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents, on Shaw Road.

The newlyweds will be making their home on Route One, Frederic. Mrs. Durga attended Frederic High School, and her husband, Grayling High School.

Guests from out-of-town here for the wedding and reception were from Traverse City, Mt. Pleasant, Battle Creek, Detroit, Flint, and Marquette.

White Pine Needle — During the past several weeks we have had many inquiries as to the cause of needle browning on White Pine trees. District Forester Ralph E. King, not being able to diagnose the cause of the needle browning, it was referred to Forest Entomologists and Forest Pathologists. It is the opinion of State Pathologists as well as Canadian Pathologists working on this condition, that it is not caused by an insect or disease organism, but is a physiological occurrence when specific weather conditions such as a dry period of two or three weeks followed by rain occurs. The time during the growing season when this occurs determines the amount of needle browning. In 1957 it came earlier in the year and only the needle tips were killed. This year it occurred in July, and therefore a much greater amount of needle browning occurred. An interesting feature of this browning is that it apparently has to do with heredity, and the same trees are affected each time this weather condition occurs.

Trees affected by the browning should recover unless they were previously weakened by other conditions.

IF SOMEBODY ASKS YOU where the greatest concentration of state government workers is located, think twice before answering in what would seem to be a logical fashion, "the Capital City of Lansing."

True, Lansing and Ingham County have more state workers than any other county in Michigan, on a head-count basis.

But in Little Luce County of the Upper Peninsula, a total of 8 per cent of the population is on the state payroll. In Ingham County, only 3.3 per cent of the total population works for the state.

The catch is that in Luce County there are only 650 or so men and women on the state payroll while in Ingham there are more than 7,000 people working for the State of Michigan.

This interesting comparison of where the state's work force is located came to light when the Civil Service Commission released statistics along this line recently.

If Ingham has the most state employees, and Luce has the greatest percentage, there is no county among Michigan's 83 without a single state worker.

Other significant figures in the information released by Civil Service included: There are six counties with more than 1,000 state workers stationed there. Wayne, which has most except for Ingham, has more than 4,500 workers for the state. Other 1,000-plus counties are Oakland, Kalamazoo, Washtenaw, Jackson and Lapeer. Fewest state workers were in Missaukee County, which had only four, the Commission said.

Naturally, the greatest number of workers were in counties where large state institutions are located. Total number of state workers is something over 31,900.

A LITTLE KNOWN though decidedly obvious police arm of the Michigan Highway Department is the weighmaster section.

A clarification of its role in the overall law enforcement picture of the state came recently from the Attorney General. The state's lawyers say a weighmaster's jurisdiction extends over the whole state for purposes of performing his specific duties.

While the weighmaster stations along Michigan highways are a familiar sight to most motorists, they probably get little more than passing attention from anyone but truck drivers.

The Highway Department wanted to know if weighmasters had statewide jurisdiction to enforce the vehicle code.

Weighmasters are assigned to specific posts, but might sometimes be sent to another sector. The Attorney General said weighmasters can operate anywhere in Michigan, but can only enforce provisions of the vehicle code which concern their specific duties.

Home Extension News — The Penny Pinchers Home Extension group met September 26 with Mrs. Jack Church as hostess. There were 12 members and 2 guests present. The penny prize was won by Mrs. Herbert Stephan. A delicious gingerbread was served by the hostess for dessert.

On October 10, Mrs. Junior Palmer is going to be the hostess at our next party. Mrs. Barney Hunter and Mrs. Ted Callahan will be co-hostesses. Each member is to bring a guest.

The Happy Matrons Home Extension ladies met September 25 at the home of Mrs. Hurl Deckrow. They spent the evening talking about gift-making for Christmas, getting ideas from magazines and looking at already made aprons and patterns. The penny prize was won by Theresa Johnson.

Harvest time being here, the hostess served pumpkin pie. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Carl-Hanson's on Oct. 23rd. Theresa Johnson, reporter

Miss Catherine E. Baumhauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Baumhauer of Ferndale, Michigan, became the bride of Mr. William Donald Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Jensen of Grayling, Michigan, at a two o'clock ceremony Thursday afternoon, September 28th, at the George W. Mason Chapel on the South Branch of the Ausable River. The Rev. Colin Campbell, Jr., of Grayling performed the ceremony before members of the immediate families.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Baumhauer chose for her wedding a gown of white satin, fashioned with a floor-length bell skirt and topped with an elbow-length lace jacket. Her veil was held by a crown of tulle interwoven with pearls and mother-of-pearl, and she carried a bouquet of carnations, stephanotis and fall leaves.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Guy Grant Bratton, Jr., of Birmingham, Michigan. She was attired in beige lace and pearl on silk with a beige leaf and brown velvet hat and large accessories. Her flowers were white roses and rust Fuji mums with fall leaves.

Donald P. Feldman served as best man to the bridegroom. Mrs. Baumhauer chose a dress of teal lace with champagne tulle, with large accessories. With it she wore a tulle and white tulle hat, and large accessories. Mrs. Jensen wore a lavender wool jersey dress adorned with pearls and stephanotis. Her corsage was of white carnations. A reception for guests was held at three o'clock at Camp Shoppemagon, following the wedding.

For the honeymoon, the young northern Michigan, and Canada, the new Mrs. Jensen chose a blue-green wool jersey dress with matching jacket, a blue and green feather hat, and black and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Jensen will live in Grayling until the fall, when they plan to move to Aspen, Colorado, to make their permanent home.

SCHOOL BAND NEWS

Our school band was off to a good start this year with a membership of 39 people. Officers elected were: President, Marilyn Stampf; vice president, Donna Penton; secretary, Penny Pettyjohn; treasurer, Julie Buron; student counsel representative, Julie Carlson.

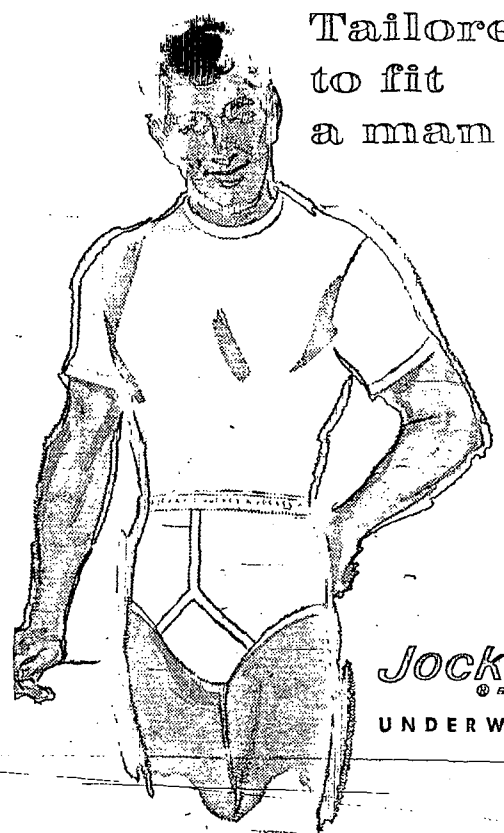

Because of much outdoor marching practice, the band was able to present two half-time shows, at our home football games, that received many compliments. We are already setting aside one day each week for inside practice. During this time, we practice music, which we will use in the district festival in the spring.

The Grayling High School Band wants this year to be the best the community has ever known. We are very proud of this organization, and we hope that you are too.

Farmers In County Gross $109,000

(Special to the Avalanche)

NEW YORK — All things considered, 1960 proved to be a better year for Crawford County farmers than was expected.

According to a nationwide report on farm incomes, the returns locally were higher, relatively, than those in many other sections of the country.

The gross revenue from farm operations in the county amounted to $109,000, it shows.

The principal part of it constituted receipts from the sale of farm products. Also included were "income in kind" which is the value of the food that was produced and consumed on the farm, and Government payments.

The figures were released by the Standard Rate and Data Service, following a survey it made of the farm situation throughout the country.

The gross receipts locally, broken down to their chief components include income from the sale of dairy products, estimated at 46 percent of the total, and income from livestock, approximately 39 percent.

Throughout the nation as a whole, it is shown, the net proceeds to the farmer, after payment of expenses, were slightly better than they were in the previous year.

Such was the case, even though crop production broke all records and the prices received by farmers for food products were two percent higher.

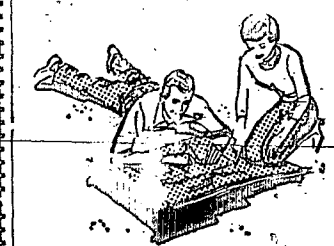

The answer lies in the fact that operating costs — for fuel, feed, lime fertilizer and other materials — continued their steady advance.

A sharp improvement is in the making this year, however. According to preliminary reports from the Department of Agriculture, 1961 is shaping up as one of the best farm years in a long time.

The department states that net income may be $1 billion higher than it was last year, the highest since 1953. A major part of the increase will be due to special subsidy and incentive payments by the Government.

The SRDS report on the farm picture in Crawford County puts gross earnings last year at the rate of $363 for each local farm resident.

Over the past three years, the figures show, gross farm revenues in the county went up 9.8 percent. Elsewhere in the United States the rise was 8.6 percent and in the East North Central States, 2.2 percent.
